PARTIAL ECLIPSE OF SUN TO BE SEEN FROM HERE

Written for The Advertiser by Professor J. S. Dougherty, of the College of Hawaii.

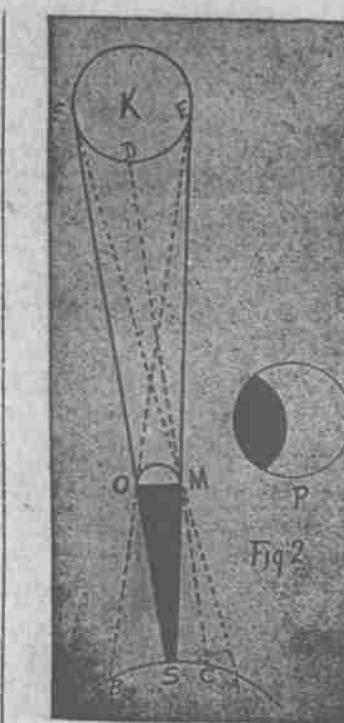

The first eclipse of the sun in 1911 will occur April 28, and will be visible in the Hawaiian Islands as a partial eclipse, beginning about ten minutes after eleven in the morning, and ending about half past one in the afternoon. At its maximum, about twenty minutes after twelve, half of the area of the sun's face will be obscured, which will make a very perceptible difference in the daylight, especially if the day be cloudy.

Any who feel hazy as to how the phenomenon is brought about, may find Figure 2 helpful. K represents the position of the sun, M, that of the moon, AB a part of the earth within the shadow. The blackened part, SMO, receives no light from the sun, and is called the umbra. The rest of the space between AM and BO, which receives light from a part of the sun's disk, is the penumbra. To an observer at C, for instance, the sun's disk would be obscured from D to F, and would present the appearance represented at P.

The double curved line BSE, across the map of Figure 1, represents the path of the umbra, or area to be visited if one wants to see a total eclipse. The umbra will strike the earth near Sydney, Australia, at 6:25, Sydney time, April 29. In about an hour it will reach T, near the Samoan Islands, and there, like all other east-bound travelers across the Pacific, will find that it has dropped back into yesterday. It will leave the earth at E, off the coast of Central America, at sunset of April 28. Translating this into Honolulu time: It will strike the earth at 9:50 a.m., April 28, and leave it at 1:55 p.m., same date. As the distance traversed is about eight thousand miles, its speed will average about two thousand miles per hour.

The black dot at S represents the position of the umbra at 11:30. An observer at the center of the area, at that hour, would see the whole sun obscured, probably with gorgeous streams of light extending out in several directions. The total phase would last about four minutes and a quarter. As a total eclipse in that latitude can never last more than about seven minutes, it will be seen that this is to be a rather long eclipse. For observers at Z, the eclipse, at that hour, will be just beginning—that is, the black disk, that seemed to start across the face of the sun about an hour ago, at the southwestern side, has passed completely across, and is now just touching the northeastern side. We at Honolulu will see the disk covering the face of the sun to the depth of about one tenth of its diameter, and almost at the southern edge. The disk will not seem to us to pass directly across, but will keep on the northern side, passing a little below the center, at the maximum.

The total eclipse will be visible on Naeau Island, Danger Island, and several of the Friendly, or Tonga Islands, but no word has been received of any expedition to observe it.
